“Creating a great family experience is what makes our work here at the ranch truly rewarding,” said

C Lazy U Guest Ranch owner Brian Murray. “So this year, we’ve decided to set aside some special time to make the experience with children and with grandparents more affordable and even more memorable.”

Helping to add to the memories during Kids Stay Free Week is the C Lazy U Kids Program, one of the longest running of its kind in the nation. Established in 1949, the program is fully supervised and divided into three age groups providing riding instruction, entertainment and education for young children, tweens and teens.

For the young at heart, C Lazy U also has plenty to offer, including: a horseback riding program that’s geared to all abilities; fishing in lakes and two miles of stream flowing through the property; hiking trails; and lots of Rocky Mountain relaxation surrounded by the finest amenities.

Rates include upscale accommodations, housekeeping, three meals per day, and all ranch facilities and activities. Activities at the ranch includes trail rides with a horse assigned to each guest for the duration of his or her stay, evening entertainment, swimming in a heated pool, tennis, whirlpool, sauna, game room and exercise area. Taxes and gratuity are not included.

Kids Stay Free Week offers an average savings of $2,500 per child, is based on a minimum booking of two paid guests and subject to availability. Grandparents Stay Free Week also offers an average savings of $2,500 per grandparent, is based on a minimum booking of four paid guests and subject to availability.
